

Design Methodology

Museum of Brands – Main Hall Exhibition

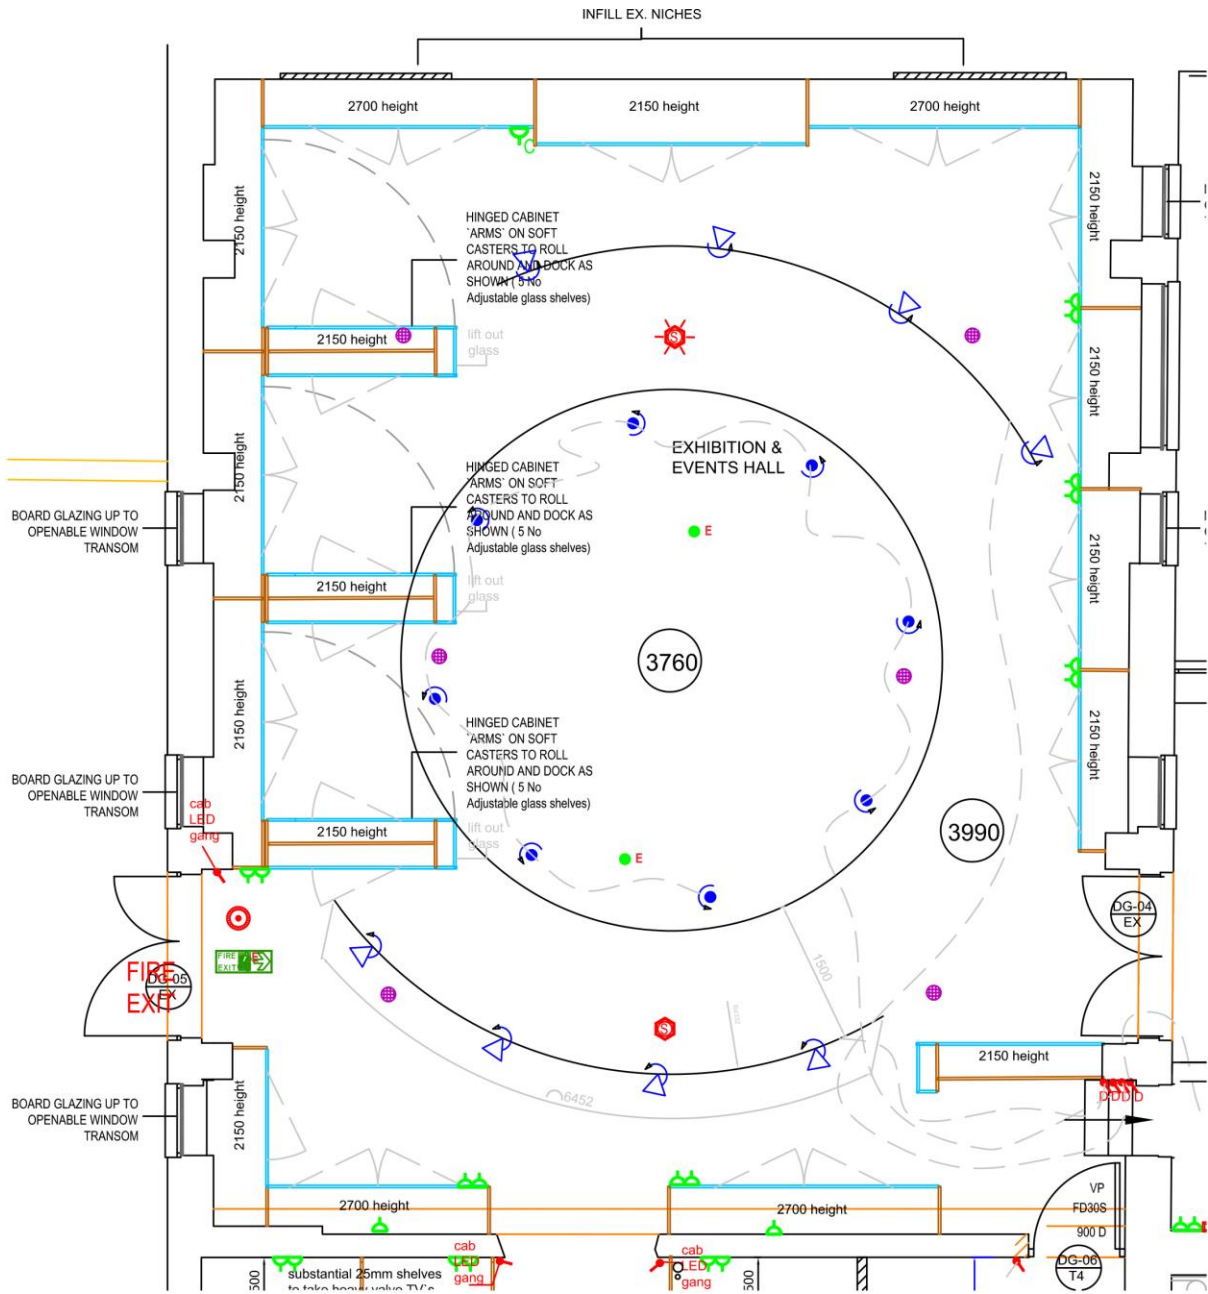

Throughout my career, I have for the most part been employed within the Workplace Sector and in recent years in Healthcare, primarily Dental Practices. My recent flagship project though was the Museum of Brands, which encompasses Retail and Hospitality.

I am therefore very adaptable whatever the project, but the common denominator is that a design is about the people that need and will inhabit the spaces concerned. Many designers underestimate the importance of the first Client Briefing, where a feel for heartbeat of new interior is to be found. I will then prepare a detailed, itemised quotation reflecting the 3 stages of design below. You can by all means choose only to go as far as Stage 1 but to whichever stage you decide to take it, If you find the quote acceptable then on we go

Stage 1 – Site Survey – Design Implementation / Space planning – Client Presentation for feedback – Design adjustment for second Client Presentation of completed overall design.

Stage 2 - Detailing and Specification – Building Control and/or Planning Approvals – Tender Documents Prepared for suitable Contractors

Stage 3 – The Build - Contractor Briefing & Working Drawings. Site Design Supervision and continued Client & Contractor liaison through to Project Completion.
